

Information for Students Affected by the Closure of Education Corporation of America Schools

On Dec. 5, 2018, officials representing the Education Corporation of America (ECA)—owners of Brightwood College and Brightwood Career Institute, as well as Virginia College (including Golf Academy of America and Ecotech Institute)—informed the U.S. Department of Education (ED) that the institution would cease offering educational instruction at the end of the current academic term. According to ECA, schools in 18 states would close by the end of December 2018.

Options for Affected Students

- Transfer to another school.
- Apply for a closed school loan discharge.
- Contact your state agency (or agencies, depending on your course of study) to explore your transfer options, including whether your state is hosting a transfer fair; learn how to get your academic records; and find out if your state has a tuition recovery fund. A list of state agencies is on pages three through five.

Transfer Your Credits To Another School

Your state agency can provide information about schools where you may be able to transfer your credits or hours to complete a comparable program. Additionally, you may want to visit collegescorecard.ed.gov to explore transfer options and find the program that's right for you. Contact individual schools for transfer credit or hour policies.

If you do transfer into a comparable program offered by another school, that school will evaluate your transcript, course work, and hours completed in the subjects covered in your course of study, and will decide how much credit to give you for the work you've already completed, as well as identify the coursework you need to complete your program of study. It is up to the new school to decide how much credit to give you.

ED is working with officials to process student records as soon as possible, so that transfer schools can start assessing students for transfer, as well as any remaining student aid eligibility. ED will work with your school officials to make sure appropriate federal student aid funds are returned and that your unearned Federal Pell Grant and loan funds are restored for future eligibility.

Remember, if you transfer the credits you've earned at your closed school toward a comparable program at another school and you complete or are in the process of completing that program, you will not be eligible to receive a closed school loan discharge for those credits.

Obtaining Your Academic Records

If you transfer to another school to continue your education, you may be asked to provide a copy of your transcript to your new school. The records also may be useful in substantiating your claim for a closed school loan discharge. Visit ecacolleges.com or your state agency's website to get the most updated information about how to obtain a copy of your transcript.

Closed School Loan Discharge Criteria

There are certain criteria for a closed school loan discharge, and there are certain steps you need to take to apply for a student loan discharge.

Student loan borrowers (and parents who took out PLUS loans on behalf of students) may be eligible for a 100-percent discharge of your federal student loans borrowed to attend your school under either of these circumstances:

- Your school closed while you were enrolled, and you did not complete your program because of the closure. If you were on an approved leave of absence for purposes of the federal student aid programs, you are considered to have been enrolled at the school, or
- You withdrew from all classes 120 days or less before your school ceased instruction.

You are not eligible for discharge of your loans if your school closed and any of the following is true:

- You withdrew from all classes more than 120 days before your school ceased instruction.
- You completed all of your coursework for your program prior to your school closing, even though you have not received a diploma or certificate.
- You are completing a comparable educational program at another school by
 - transferring academic hours earned at your closed school to another school, or
 - any other comparable means.

The Loan Discharge Process

To apply for a closed school loan discharge, you can either:

- Complete and return the closed school loan discharge application sent to you by your servicer or complete the closed school loan discharge application at StudentAid.gov/closed-school-form and return it to your loan servicer, or
- Contact your loan servicer for more information before you complete the application.

You must send your Closed School Loan Discharge Application to your federal student loan servicer. To find out who your loan servicer is, log in to “My Federal Student Aid” at StudentAid.gov/login or call 1-800-4-FED-AID (1-800-433-3243; TTY for the hearing impaired 1-800-730-8913).

- Be sure to continue to make payments on your loan while your discharge application is being processed.
- If you do not meet the criteria for a loan discharge, you will be informed by your loan servicer and will need to continue making payments on your loans based on the terms of your promissory note.

Visit StudentAid.gov/closed-school for additional information about closed school loan discharges.

Your Federal Pell Grant Eligibility

The amount of Federal Pell Grant funds you may receive over your lifetime is limited by federal law to be the equivalent of six years of Pell Grant funding. Since the maximum amount of Pell Grant funding you can receive each year is equal to 100 percent, the six-year equivalent is 600 percent. For more information, visit StudentAid.gov/pell-leu. If you are eligible for the restoration of Pell Grant eligibility, your restoration will be done automatically; there is nothing for you to do. If your Pell Grant eligibility has been restored for the current award year, and/or you have regained eligibility bringing you under the 600-percent limitation, you will be notified by email.

Accessing Information About Your Federal Financial Aid

If you need to access information about your federal financial aid history, log in to “My Federal Student Aid” at StudentAid.gov/login.

If you filed a FAFSA[®] form identifying your ECA school as the institution you would be attending and need the information forwarded to another institution, visit fafsa.gov to make changes to your filed application.

We Are Here To Help

ED is committed to helping you as you plan the next steps in continuing your education. We encourage you to avoid paying for services that Federal Student Aid offers for free.

Please visit StudentAid.gov/closures to view common Q&As asked by students of other closed schools, as well as a table—StudentAid.gov/eca-closures—containing information related to your school’s exact closure date. The table will be updated regularly to reflect new school closures.

Contact the Federal Student Aid Information Center at 1-800-4-FED-AID (1-800-433-3243; TTY for the hearing impaired 1-800-730-8913) for help understanding this information.
